Pastor's Note

May 21, 2022

What are your best memories from elementary school? If you're like me, those memories revolve around two groups of people: your friends and your teachers. Do I remember the classes I took? Of course! (Well, at least some of them. J) But it's the people that stick in my mind the most, and those good friends and good teachers still bring a smile to my face today.

As I think about it, all those good friends and teachers were no accident. You see, from the time I was in first grade until I graduated from college, my mother paid whatever price was necessary to send me and my sister to schools that were run by the Seventh-day Adventist Church. This was a huge challenge as such schools are not cheap, and we were not rich. My mom was raising both my sister and me on her own, and simply paying rent and keeping us fed was a real challenge—never mind trying to find the funds to pay for private school tuition.

But Mom sacrificed because she knew something that I would later discover for myself: there's something very special about Seventh-day Adventist schools. Done correctly, they not only teach math, science, etc., in excellent fashion, but they do the most important thing any school can do: introduce students to Jesus Christ and help them to be ready for His soon return. I believe it is because Adventist schools have Christ at their center that I was able to find so many good friends and learn from so many good teachers.

If you have children of school age today, what are your plans for next school year? Have you considered sending them to an Adventist school? If not, why not check them out? Your children need to know Jesus. And the good friends and good teachers you'll find in Adventist schools can enrich your child's life for today and eternity.
