Pastor's Note

September 7, 2019

Some of my most powerful spiritual experiences have occurred in the context of a small group: ministering with a FLAG Camp team, meeting with a group to study the Bible, pray, and hold each other accountable, or simply spending time in nature. Connecting to God can (and should) happen when we are by ourselves. But if we are not experiencing God in the context of a small group of people, I believe we are missing out. Today we will look at small groups as powerful tools used by God to shape our lives and advance His kingdom. Particularly at this time in history when we seem to be so disconnected from each other, I believe that the spiritual and social connections of small groups are more important than ever. Please consider the possibility of experiencing God in a greater way by joining a small group, and please join me in praying that there will be a movement of small groups and house churches here in the valley just as was described in the book of Acts.
